Hanukkah at the Beach

Grade 8 / Daniel’s letter from Brisbane

שם התלמיד _____ כיתה _____

Hi everyone, On my first morning in Brisbane, sunlight woke me up. The clock on the wall said 5:00. I looked at my watch. It said 9:00 p.m. I looked out of the window. The sun was up, and I could hear birds in the garden. I went into the kitchen. My uncle was making coffee. “Is the clock on the wall right?” I asked. “Yes,” he said. Then he looked at my watch. “Did you change the time when you landed?” I shook my head. My watch still showed the time in Ramat Gan. Here in Australia, it was already morning. Back home, you still had a whole night ahead of you. I left my watch on Israeli time. I like knowing what the time is at home and not in Australia.

After breakfast, my cousin Ben handed me a beach towel. “Don’t you have school today?” I asked. “School’s over,” he said. “It’s our summer vacation.” “Come on!” “Everyone’s going to the beach.” I tried to picture myself going to the beach in December. All I could see was the wet coat I had worn to the airport. But an hour later, I was in the sea with Ben.

That evening, when we got home, my aunt put the Hanukkah candles by the window. I stopped in the doorway. I still had sand on my feet. “How can it be Hanukkah in the middle of summer vacation?” I asked Ben. He looked just as surprised as I was. “Do you mean you wear a winter coat on Hanukkah?” We lit the candles. Then I took a picture for you. You can see the flames in the window and, just below them, two beach towels hanging up to dry. Happy Hanukkah from Brisbane! Daniel
